

Deal Castle. May 30th 1782.

My Dear Miss Hamilton

This Letter was intended for Yesterday's Post but I found it was too late & therefore was obliged to defer it till to day, when I can have the Satisfaction of continuing the good Account I have been all while to send constantly of our little Prince, & which I beg you to communicate to their Majesties. I think there is no doubt of the Sea bathing agreeing with him, his Nights are so much mended & his Appetite so good, that he must gain ground, & tho' his Face is not any thing like clear of the Eruption that disfigured it, yet it rather appears to be the remains of what has been there any fresh breaking out. The Eye-lid that seemed so much affected is also getting better, & therefore I hope will not have any effect of working the Eye, which I was a little afraid of. You will have heard of the happiness I have had of seeing my Son at his first Landing, he hurried away to London to be in time for his presenting & preparing to appearing at the Birth-day, for which I suppose you are all now very busy in preparing. We shall open our Windows again for the firing of the guns, which shakes the Castle so, that if it was not for the Execution they would all be broke & the sound is very fremendous, P. Alfred however is very courageous upon these oc-casion & seems rather to like it; we have had that ceremony since the first time in honor of his arrival, & the last on the Destruction Day. Mrs Carter I have often the pleasure of seeing, & except her usual Head-achs, think she appears rathly well & cheerful.

My little girls are quite delightful Companions to me, & if the Weather was not so windy & cold I believe would prevail on me sometimes to walk upon the Sands with them which they are very fond of, but I have not yet been able to attempt; but pass a great Deal of my time by a Seaside (wh<sup>ch</sup> you will hardly credit) in a pretty little room that has a delightful view of the Sea. I have begun reading Antonio de Solis in Spanish, Mr Carter having furnished me with a Dictionary, (without which I could not attempt it,) & am continuing Mad de Genlis's Adèle & Theodore; these, with my little Childrens Studies, & my own Letter writing, fill my Day very completely, & I generally retire to my Bed Chamber by a little after tea, wh<sup>ch</sup> enables me to rise early in the Morning. I am glad to hear Mad de la Fite is mending, & beg you will assure her how concern'd I have been at hearing of her Illness. I hope the Influenza which is said to be so general, will not affect the Queen's House or any thing belonging to it. I trust to you my Dear Miss Hamilton to make all my Duties Compt as you know I should wish to do these, & then will do the kindest thing I can by you in concluding this, from

Servant

C. Finch

Be so good to let the enclosed Letter be sent to Mr Haskins's 'tis from Mrs Cheney.
