I received a Letter a few days ago, my dear Miss Hamilton, that has made me appear to myself, ^{like} a Wanderer on the face of the Earth. I have been intending ~~to~~ two days to move my Lodgings; but I cannot have the Resolution to go into such a solitary House. — I will do it however tomorrow, for I am almost as bad fitting here alone. — The look'd too dismal for me today; — nay, I thought my friend look'd unusually grave at me; but she has not her Spirits at command; — A cloud, or a sight of the Sun rules a Woman of Sense! — You shall have the particulars of the Letter above mentioned, first time we meet. Mean while, let me beg you'll lay your commands on me when you choose I should attend you; for, believe me, nothing but the fear of becoming too troublesome & familiar, could keep me out of your House. — Mr. [redacted] is just come in to sit with me; so, with better spirits, I wish my dear Miss Harriet & her kind Mama — Good Night

Your affectionate friend
