A Thousand Thanks to you my S.
I am for indulging me with the Perusal of a such Letter. I am much amused with both, but greatly struck with the Superiority of M^{rs} Caters Style, it is so plain so simple & what my poor Dr Poovee used to call so chaste.
I think M^{rs} Moore is rather too diffuse, but in Criticism an Very Just.

if Miss Patterney should be as completely disregard^d, as a young Lady of my Acquaintance^{think} was by going to the same Convent, I think they have an infallible Recipe for the Cure of awkward Girls; she was very thick, very short necked, & clumsy when she went; but returned, in less than 2 years, one of the gentlest & dearest I ever saw, but I never could get her to own, what sort of Sense Pres she had been put into. Adieu - I cannot say au revoir, because I never see you at all.
