

My dear Sir

VAM/1/4/2/23

Your letter that has just now come to hand reduces me to a state of absolute despair; the continual intense pain that my dear Daughter has suffered during this calamitous illness has brought on a twisting of the intestines, which I apprehend must terminate in a mortification. I now repent not having come to Town, at the beginning of her illness for tho' I could demonstrate no real intelligence I could at least show that my affection is without bounds. I have reason to believe that there is an ample supply in hand to furnish every necessary expence upon the occasion, of this kind, and can give you proper information, it is my wish that the Physicians should be paid most liberally. I must remain in usual agitation till Tuesday as no Post leaves London till tomorrow. I have not strength but to add that I remain your most faithful & obliged

Bath May 2⁶th 1710.
